

ONLINE

thejapantimes ACADEMY

Facilitation Seminar

for Your International Collaborations

Date: Wed. July 8th; Fri. July 17th, 2020

Time: 14:00-16:00 (Opens at 13:30)

Have you thought of the importance of facilitation at work? How do you lead an international project to a great success as a principal investigator? As a researcher or an engineer, you might be excellent at presentations, questions or comments, but on top of that, facilitation skills are imperial to organize different ideas and comments with a team of diverse members. Under the MEXT initiatives, we will deliver a quick seminar to develop your career. We look forward to your participation.

Program

What we learn

Session 1

- Self-introduction
- Breaking the Ice
- Share the objectives

Session 2

- Involve all the members
- Dealing with conflict in a group
- Summarizing the opinions
- Decision making

Session 3

- Wrap-up the meeting
- Q&A time
- Summarizing the discussion

Can you say?

Instructor:

Anthony Blick

He has been an adjunct professor for PR and media relations at Temple University Japan and marketing at New York University SPS in Tokyo. He has been a guest lecturer at Temple University Japan, Sophia University, International University of Japan MBA, and Aoyama Gakuin MBA and is frequently requested to speak at local professional events in and around Tokyo. He has over 15 years of professional experience in Japan.

- Sign up from bit.ly/2QRVNiI by June 30, 2020.
- No fee is required.
- Both seminars are the same.

